SCHOOL REPORT

FOR THE YEAR 1868-9.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

Both the Summer and Winter Terms of this school were taught by Miss Lois E. McDuffee, of Auburn. Though it was her first effort at teaching, we thought her labors were attended with marked success. She was much interested in the improvement of her scholars, and evidences of it were very perceptible at the examinations. The neatness of the writing-books deserve particular commendation.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

There was but one term of this school kept in the Autumn by Miss Mary S. Bickford. This school was her first experience, and as she was quite young, some fears were entertained by the committee as to her ultimate success. We visited the school twice while it was in progress. It appeared to be quiet and orderly, and we believe general satisfaction was given in the district. The committee was not notified and consequently not present at the examination.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

The Summer term was taught by Miss Mary F. Pingree, of Auburn. At the examination of this school, the order was good, and the evidence of thorough and efficient instruction very apparent. The Winter term by Mr. Samuel T. Page, a student at Dartmouth College. Mr. Page appeared rather to govern by mild and persuasive methods, than in an arbitrary manner. As a consequence, the scholars all appeared happy and contented at examination. The recitations were generally prompt and accurate, and much has doubtless been done for the cause of education by the Winter term.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

Both the Summer and Winter terms were taught by Miss Louisa B. Adams, of Derry. Miss Adams manifested much interest in her school, and a readiness and cheerfulness in imparting instruction to her scholars. Perhaps a lack of thoroughness may be mentioned as a defect in her method of teaching, and her register returned to the committee very imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

The Summer and Winter terms were both taught by Miss Anna M. Dockham, of Auburn, and were her first experience in teaching. The school is quite small, and needs the stimulus of numbers on both teacher and scholars. Miss Dockham's success was as good as could reasonably be expected, nor do we doubt her ability of becoming a first class teacher.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

Both terms of this school were taught by Miss Ella F. Hanson, of Auburn. This school is also small, and the above remarks in relation to No. 5 are applicable also here. Miss Hanson was kind and affectionate in the school room, and evidence of improvement was very perceptible at the examination.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

The Summer term in this district was taught by Miss Lucy H. Wilson, from Vermont. Miss Wilson manifested much interest in her school, and was very desirous, we think of doing well. The school at the close indicated a fair degree of progress, though we were sorry to notice several of the larger scholars were absent.

The Winter term by Mrs. Nancy M. Rowell. Mrs. Rowell has been favorably known in town as teacher in former years. The committee visited the school twice while it was in progress, but it closed unexpectedly a few days before the end of the term, and there was no examination. It is but justice to the teacher to say, that she was excused from further service by the prudential committee at her own request.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

The Summer term was taught by Miss Sarah E. Fox, of Auburn. This school was the first effort of Miss Fox at teaching, and was also in her own district. So far as we could discover in our visits she was firm and steady in her government, and possessed of that mildness that commands respect, and gains the affection of the children. The school appeared well at the examination.

The Winter term by Miss Sarah A. Ball. At our first visit, the school appeared orderly and quiet, though not large, and gave promise of much usefulness during the term. The school is still in progress, having several weeks yet to keep.

GENERAL REMARKS.

As annual reports are made by thy school-committees of all the towns in the State, more than two hundred in number, much originality of thought or expression can hardly be expected from each one: especially where, as has been the case in Auburn during the past year, but little has happened out of the usual school course.

SCHOOL DISCIPLINE.

Much has been written and spoken of late years on the above subject, and many of the practices of former times have disappeared before the advance of a humanitarian age. It may, we think, safely be said to teachers, that no method of punishment which is likely injuriously to effect the health of the scholars, or destroy permanently the contentment and happiness which should dwell in the school room, will be looked upon with much favor at the present day. Much no doubt may be accomplished in this direction, by moral influences, kindly and in the right spirit brought to bear on the mind of the pupil;—by a system of merits and de-merits;—and by various other expedients, which the ingenuity of the teacher can often devise;—and sometimes it may be necessary to inflict mere physical pain, where “the evil ends in itself;” judiciously and as a last resort.
